Hope There Will Be No World War III

IN THE VALLEY OF THE MOON

Well. . . Well. . . Well. . . Seventeen years ago this Sunday America's hopes for keeping out of World War II crashed around its ears in the tragic, bloody ruins of Pearl Harbor. . .

Wherever lies the blame for Japan's ability to surprise our Island defenses, the price of that error was enormous and we will be paying for it in money and emotion for many long years to come. . .

Do we have another potential Pearl Harbor today? ? ? Is Berlin the crucial spot where ambitious enemies might exploit our weaknesses to gain a terrible advantage in World War III? ? ?

Let it be our constant prayer that we forget not the stark lesson of December 7, 1941—that it not become, through our inept efforts to live in peace, a day of infamy far blacker than it seemed on that shocking Sunday. . .

———O———

We understand that some of the local preachers are giving Jess and Joe Udvic a bad time over transfering their liquor license to the old Post Office Bldg. in El Verano. The A.B.C. will hold a hearing on Dec. 9th to see who is right. . .

A temperance lecturer, demonstrating the evils of strong drink, put a worm in a glass of water, where it swam around happily, but when he removed that worm and dropped it into a glass of whiskey, it sank to the bottom and died. Can you tell me what this demonstration proves? Well it's a lesson we should take to heart, for here's scientific evidence that if you drink whiskey you'll never have worms.

Merchants be on the look out for the short-change artists these days. . . Here is a simple trick that works this way: The crook, let's say, goes into a cafe and orders a meal. With his check he walks to the cashier, to whom he presents a $10 bill to pay his check. She hands him back a $5 bill, four ones and some coins. He takes another single bill from his pocket, hands her five ones and asks for a $5 bill. She gives it to him, holding the five ones in her hand. "Now," says the short-changer, quickly, "I'll give you this $5, you give me back my $10 and we'll be square." If she does (and they usually do) she's out $4, some change and the price of the meal.
